The complaints made by Commissionr MacLean over his own signature al-Capt. Martens, of the East Thirty-fifth street station, and Capt. Slevin, of the Oak street station, were brought up before the Police Commissioners again this afternoon.

When the complaint was offered at the last meeting Supt. Byrnes was re-quested to notify the captains to make any explanation of the charges they might deem proper. Both submitted answers to the charges, which were read to-day, and by a vote of 3 to 1 Commissioner MacLean voting in the negative, the charges against Martens Commissioner MacLean then move that Capt Martens be notified to appear for trial at the meeting next Friday, on charges which he then presented, for failing to suppress the disorderly house known as Corcoran's saloon, at Thirtyfifth street and Third avenue. The mo-tion was amended by President Martin that the Captain be notified to make any answer or any explanation of the charges he thought necessary to Supt. Byrnes, who would submit the same to the meeting of the Board.

The places complained of as disorderly houses by Commissioner MacLean were the Iroquois House, 618-615 Third avenue; the Sherman House, 152-154 East Forty-second street, and the Columbia Hotel, 441 Third avenue.

The charges against Capt. Slevin were accepted on motion of President Martin, and Friday at 11 o'clock was assigned for his trial.

The places mentioned in the complaint as disorderly in his precinct were Noa. If 76 and 90 James street, 9 James slip and 110-12 Cherry street.

The first mentioned, the Captain states in his answer, is a respectable place, and he has never heard any complaint against it. It is a five-story tenement-house, the ground floor being occupied by a drug store and carpenter shop, and the upper stories by families. No. 75 James sireet was formerly a disorderly house. Capt. Drank a Bottle of Wine and The Prepared to Die.

Ludger Laroche, forty-five years old, a Director in the Department of the Interior of the French Republic, was asphyxiated by gas in the Rotel de Paris, 75 Christopher street, this morning. It is supposed he committed sui-cide.

He had been in the city only since last night, and was on his way to France in the hope of improving his failing health.

Several years ago M. Laroche went to Port of France, on the Island of Mar-tinique, in the West Indies. He was the representative of the French Minister of the Interior A year ago his health gave way under the hot climate. Then, at his own request, M. Laroche was transferred to the French fishing colony at St. Pierre Miquelon, Newfoundland. It seemed for a time as though the change would do him good, but a month ago physicians sitvised him that he nust have another change, and ordered him to take a trip to France.

This M. Laroche decided to do. Late yesterday afternoon as landed at the Commercial Stores, Brosslyn, from the steamer Charles Martell, and an hour later registered at the Hotel de Paris. With him was a friend, said to be an attache of the French consulate ners. The two drank a bottle of wine together. At 10.30 o'clock M Laroche retired and his friend left, saying he would call again this morning.

Laroche's room was on the third floor. In the next room was the Viscount Aubigney d'Essy and his valet. The valet smelled gas about midnight. He thought the meter was leaking and opened all the windows.

A chambermaid passing through the halls at $30 o'clock this morning, 'rying to find where the gas was leaking, thought it came from M Laroche's room. She knocked at the door, but there was no response. This M. Laroche decided to do. Late

She knocked at the door, but there was no response.

Then she hurried to Harry J. Matson, the preprietor of the house. He climbed into the room through a window. M. Laroche was lying in bed dead.

The gas burner was turned on full and all the windows were closed. On the table all of M. Laroche's valuables and papers were spread out. He had not even left in his pocket a piece of paper. paper.
